Since 1985, OPAI has offered professional quality training to students of all ages. In addition to a continually expanding class schedule, OPAI produces five performances each year, including Springfield's own community production of The Nutcracker. We realize that as a parent, you have a choice between several different studios. All music studios are not the same. We provide the quality training in Springfield in a caring family environment. OPAI instructors continually work to improve their skills. We know that as artists, we must never stop learning and growing.

About OPAI

Ohio Performing Arts Institute (OPAI) is a not-for-profit performance education organization located in Springfield, Ohio. Operated by a retired Broadway professional, OPAI provides high-quality training in ballet, tap, jazz, acting, musical theatre, yoga, voice, piano, guitar, and more. OPAI's vision is that all people in the community will be touched by the arts through programming and performance offered in our institute. Our mission of providing quality arts education and performance opportunities to students of all ages in a positive atmosphere in which strong bodies, skills and character are developed resulting in a community that is inspired, engaged and enriched by the arts is evident through our commitment to our students and their education.

THE

4 Things You Should Consider When Choosing a Music Studio

1. Teacher Qualifications

OPAI hires only experienced, professional teachers. All of our teachers have degrees or certifications in their areas of expertise and teaching music is their career. Our teachers care about their students and strive to create nurturing, creative environments where students can excel.

2. Private Lessons offered

When learning to play an instrument or sing, private lessons are far superior. Students don't miss instructions and can learn at their own pace. In this setting, the student is the teacher's primary focus and the lesson can concentrate on the individual student's strengths and weaknesses.

3. When can I begin lessons

Appropriate beginning ages vary by instrument and student. Our professional staff can assist you in determining if your child is ready for a specific instrument or in choosing an age appropriate specialty. Adults can begin lessons at any time.
